

The Castleknock Localise Teen Fashion Show

The annual Localise Teen Fashion Show organised by the young members of the Castleknock Localise Group, has raised nearly 20 thousand euros for St. Francis Hospice in Dublin 15.

This year, the show was a huge success for the 40 young members and the 12 adult leaders who run the group. Fabulous garments, lights and music filled the charity night at the Castleknock Country Club Hotel, where the young people modeled the latest fashions and enjoyed a night of festivities and raffles, all in aid of a good cause.

The show was sponsored by over 15 different shops from the Blanchardstown Shopping Centre and the Castleknock Country Club Hotel. This was the sixth Fashion show the group has organised, and they raised four and a half thousand euros for the Hospice on the night.

The Castleknock Localise Group carries out a number of different community projects throughout the year in order to encourage community spirit and develop local friendships. This year, the group also presented on the night two more cheques with the proceeds of other worthy projects they organised:

One cheque for 2,001.00 euro was presented to The Cystic Fibrosis Association of Ireland and another one for 1,136.00 was presented to Canteen an organisation which supports teenagers with Cancer in Ireland.

“The moneys raised by the young people of Castleknock Localise will make a huge difference for a teenager battling cancer, as it allows us to set up proper support systems for the teenagers in our organisation and their families” - said a representative of Canteen on the night.

We wish to congratulate all our Castleknock members and adult leaders for their fantastic community work and their tireless efforts to care in their community.
